

TARGACEPT

Smart people, Compelling science

At Targacept, we know that a great work environment makes it easier to do great science. That's why we were delighted, but not surprised, to learn that we were chosen among the "Best Places to Work" for the second year in a row. Our scientists are working every day to make a real difference in the lives of those suffering from Alzheimer's disease, cognitive dysfunction in schizophrenia, pain, depression, and other diseases and disorders of the central nervous system by discovering and developing a new class of drugs that we call NNR Therapeutics™. Ours is a truly diverse culture that celebrates creativity and innovation along with performance and results.
